

JRob98@aol.co

m

01/13/03

11:36 PM

To: CWAwaters@EPA

cc:

Subject: Clean Water Act

In regards to the statements issued by the EPA and US Army Corps: Leaving 20

million acres to the discretion of developers(most of which are only concerned with $) is a disservice to the American public who are supposed to be protected by your agencies. Is there no one left in authority that is not motivated by greed and developers? Leaving isolated sections of land unprotected is tantamount to signing the death warrant of all the wildlife that uses it. Must the whole country be covered with buildings before someone in Washington wakes up? The rest of the country enjoys seeing something besides houses and strip malls.

The water is becoming increasingly more polluted. Maybe its time Clean Water

started doing its job and look to the future. Less building is better than more.

Jan Roberts